Summary

Combining my analytical mindset and passion for the global community, I obtained a Math Education Degree and went on to complete a TEFL Certification in Italy. With an ambition to share education around the world, I have traveled globally to teach English, self-empowerment and leadership. In the resource constrained slums of Kenya and India, I drew on my entrepreneurial roots as the founder of a 20 person Lawn Care company to teach my students business management, conservation, and self-sufficiency. The varying circumstances in which I have taught have given me insight and explicit research data to analyze the efficacy of my instruction as I continually strive to connect people with the ideas that may change their lives.
